An Ad Each Day Is the Result-Pulling Way

Keeping constantly at it is the rule that applies distinctly to the use of advertisements.

Run an ad each day for best results. It's the constant dripping of water that finally wears away the stone—it's the constant presentation of your message that finally "gets across."

Today your ad may not gain the attention of a prospect—but tomorrow someone who is interested in your proposition will read it and be moved to act.

Keep on advertising—do it today and tomorrow and everyday. In the long run you'll gain ample results to pay for regular use of advertisements.
